

A Prairie Calling Newsletter

A Prairie Calling is a newsletter covering various topics related to Nachusa Grasslands aimed at a popular, broad audience. It approaches its subject matter in a less scientific way with an emphasis on images. The newsletter has gotten a very favorable response from recipients. Currently, it comes out three times per year: February, May, and August. The publication is a team effort with Charles Larry as editor-in-chief (replacing Bernie Buchholz), Dee Hudson as designer, and James Higby as editor. Past issues focused on Nachusa's bees, dragonflies and damselflies, parasitic plants, oak savannas, prairie restoration, moths, winter photography, and grassland birds. The next issue is on the annual bison roundup.

We started experimenting this last issue with printing on recycled paper. We weren't sure how this would work as some papers don't print photos well. But we think this worked out and will continue to use this paper in the future.
